John:

Thanks for returning my phone call on the Naval detailee to replace [REDACTED] who is retiring at the end of this month. Your message indicated that the Bureau (BUPERS) was looking for someone with a background in economic analysis and/or financial management. That description is not at all consistent with our view of the person we are looking for. The individual we are looking for is better described as a systems analyst or, alternatively, as a policy analyst or operations analyst (see attached position description). I think it might be helpful if you could clarify this for BUPERS and also stress for them the desirability of finding someone with an in-depth appreciation of the intelligence needs of naval operating forces since this will be one of the major areas of emphasis for this individual. Thanks again for your help in this matter.
